Announcement

Call for Papers

THE ASSOCIATION for the Advancement of Dutch-American Studies (AADAS) will hold its nineteenth biennial meeting in Pella, Iowa, Thursday-Saturday, June 5-8, 2013. The local host is Lisa Zylstra in conjunction with Central College. The conference theme is "The Dutch-American Involvement in War: U.S. and Abroad." This conference will explore historical themes related to the contribution of the Dutch to America in times of war—in the army or on the homefront, starting with the Civil War, but also in subsequent wars and military operations. Ron Rietveld, emeritus professor of history at Cal State Fullerton, will give a keynote lecture on the role of Pella's founder, Hendrik Scholte, during the Civil War.

The conference will take place in Iowa, a state where pioneers of Dutch immigration settled and home to a large population of Americans of Dutch ancestry. This setting will provide an opportunity to address Iowa's place in Dutch American history and explore the ongoing interest in Dutch identity across the United States today. The call for papers includes these themes, but paper proposals on Dutch-American topics not related to the themes will also be considered.

As has become a tradition since 2003, submitted papers will be considered for inclusion in a book to be published by the Van Raalte Press, under the auspices of the A. C. Van Raalte Institute in Holland Michigan.

The program committee consists of Lisa Zylstra and George Harinck. Paper proposals, consisting of about 300 words, and a one-page CV should be submitted by December 30, 2012, to zylstrabrianlisa@hotmail.com and g.harinck@vu.nl.

If you are interested in being on the mailing list for upcoming conference information, please contact Lisa Zylstra at zylstrabrianlisa@hotmail.com.

Contributors

BRIAN EDWARD DONOVAN is adjunct professor of history at Kirkwood Community College in Cedar Rapids and graduate instructor in history at the University of Iowa. He is completing his Ph.D. dissertation in American history at the University of Iowa. His research concerns the intersection of gender and disability among midwestern veterans of the Civil War.
